NICOLA CATTANI A.I.C. ITALIAN CINEMATOGRAPHER

NICOLA CATTANI

A.I.C.

A.I.C. - Imago

Nicola Cattani has become a part of the great family of A.I.C. since 2023.

A.I.C. is the Italian Association of Authors of Cinematography, which boasts the presence of the great Masters of Italian cinematography within its ranks.

Nicola Cattani

was born in Senigallia (AN) in Italy in '74 and currently lives between Rovereto and Rome.

He is the son of two art history teachers.

He completed his studies first at the Depero Art Institute in Rovereto and then at I.S.I.A in Urbino. Both schools focused on photography.

He was in love with printing and photographic film and spent his days in the darkroom printing black and white negatives in 35mm and 70mm formats, and using a large format view camera.

He took his first steps in the world of cinematography by starting to work at Cinecittà Digital in the field of VFX.

He was a Director of Photography for commercials for important companies such as Dolomiti Energia, Sosi, Bauer, Rotari, and Apt. He is an appreciated DoP with experience gained in the field of advertising for brands such as Carlsberg, Diadora, Aprilia, etc.

In the film industry, he was DoP for the feature film "Wild Boar" shot in China in 2017. For Medusa Distribuzione, he directed the photography for the feature film "The Boy and the Tiger" by B. Quilici with Claudia Gerini, shot in Italy and Nepal.

With the short film "The Prisoner" by F. Olivetti, starring Sabrina Impacciatore, he won several awards for directing the photography.

He directed the photography for music videos for the artist Francesco Gabbani, which achieved the record of over 77 million views on YouTube.

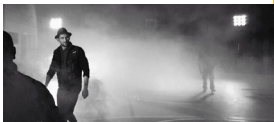

For the Muse (Science Museum of Trento), he created a large environmental-themed video installation on 12 vertical monitors titled "Generational Dialogues".

As a camera operator, he has just finished shooting the new film by Maestro Pupi Avati, "The Fourteenth Sunday", set to be released on May 4th.

CINEMATOGRAPHER

Cinematography requires passion, experience, and creativity. For those seeking a cinematographer capable of bringing an artistic vision to their production, Italy is the perfect place to look.

Italy has been the birthplace of art and creativity for centuries, with one of the most influential and iconic periods in art history, the Renaissance. Italian art has inspired generations of artists and creatives worldwide, becoming a symbol of excellence, style, and beauty.

This tradition of artistic and creative excellence is still alive today in Italy and is evident in the country's film production. The Italian school of cinematography has produced some of the world's best cinematographers, including Vittorio Storaro, Giuseppe Rotunno, Tonino Delli Colli, and Luciano Tovoli, just to name a few.

Italian cinematographers' experience and creativity are reflected in their ability to use light, color, and composition to convey emotions and bring directors' visions to life. Choosing the right lighting style is essential to creating credible and unique characters and telling engaging stories.

The passion and dedication of Italian artists for their craft are reflected in their ability to manipulate light and create engaging and evocative stories. Nicola Cattani has a truly precious style, he knows how to use light and camera positioning to facilitate the director's needs. He loves a collaborative approach with departments such as set design and costume and is always looking for new stories to represent with his stylistic touch.

If you're looking for an Italian cinematographer, you can be sure to find an artist capable of bringing the Italian tradition of artistic excellence into the world of cinema.
